Christine M. Hanisco is an attorney with The Stein Law Firm PLLC. Her practice focuses on complex trial practice, criminal law and family law matters, with a special focus on assistive reproductive technology law (ART law). She has extensive experience in public service, having held staff attorney positions with agencies such as the Disabilities Rights Center (Concord, New Hampshire), the Department of Social Services (Worcester, Massachusetts), and over eleven years with the New Hampshire Public Defender's Office (Concord and Manchester, New Hampshire).

Chrissy works with clients to find innovative, cost-effective solutions to pressing legal issues involving their most precious asset: their families.

Personal Information:

Chrissy has been practicing law since 2000, and has a long history of legal service for indigent and needy populations. Before joining Stein Law, Chrissy spent 11 years with the New Hampshire Public Defender's Office, where she represented indigent criminal defendants facing prosecution. Often, Chrissy was able to help her clients successfully resolve their legal issues without extensive, drawn out litigation. Prior to her work with the Public Defender's Office, Chrissy spent several years representing adults and children with disabilities at the Disabilities Rights Center in Concord, where, among her other accomplishments, she helped successfully settle a large class action lawsuit involving the Americans with Disabilities Act and a national department store chain. She was appointed Guardian Ad Litem in a number of cases — for adolescents with disabilities — and effectively advocated for them within their school districts, community mental health centers, with police departments, and in court. Chrissy, as Assistant Regional Counsel, litigated cases involving child protection, guardianship, and other issues in for the Department of Social Services in Worcester (MA).

Originally from Connecticut, Chrissy first came to New Hampshire in 1989 as a student at Saint Anselm College in Manchester. She graduated, cum laude in 1993 and then spent several years working at the New Hampshire Department of Justice, first as a mediator and then a Paralegal, in the Consumer Protection and Antitrust Bureau.

Chrissy earned her J.D., cum laude, from New York Law School in 2000. She was the recipient of several honors and awards and was the Executive Articles Editor of the New York Law School Journal of Human Rights. She also held several legal internships and clerkships, including for the Trial Court for the Commonwealth, Juvenile Court Department, in Boston, Massachusetts. Chrissy is also deeply involved in professional and community service. Currently, she is an Executive Board Member of the Capital Region Mothers of Multiples, a group that provides outreach to parents and expectant parents of multiples in New Hampshire. She also spent several years as an adjunct faculty member at the New Hampshire Technical Institute in Concord, where she taught legal writing and legal research in both the Paralegal Program and the Legal Nurse Consultant Certificate Program.
